BACKS DOWN AT ELEVENTH HOUR

Wilson Firm in Determination to Deliver Message Until Eleven O'Clock This Morning

WILL INSIST ON EVERY DEMAND

Administration Will Force de Facto Government to Concede Everything Desired

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Peace is near in Mexico, President Huerta is wavering. Within twenty-four hours acceptance by Huerta of this government's mediation plan is deemed not only possible, but more than probable.

These were the sign posts today in the most thrilling international diplomatic drama, in which this country has played a part in a decade. The developments were:

Huerta Asks Delay

President Huerta asked President Wilson to postpone delivery of his address to congress on the Mexican situation scheduled for today. President Wilson acquiesced—with a proviso that he would make the address tomorrow unless Huerta accepted the American proposals.

An indication that the president is in earnest about delivering his Mexican address was given when the senate and house passed a resolution to meet tomorrow in joint session. It will be to this assembly that the president will speak, unless Huerta backs down.

It was officially announced at the White house that on its proposals made by Governor John Lind to the Huerta administration. Upon the highest authority, from sources close to the president, it was stated that four drastic proposals were contained in the mediation plan. These were:

U. S. Demands

- 1—Immediate cessation of organized hostilities.
- 2—Arrangement for a definite armistice.
- 3—Arrangement for free and early presidential elections in Mexico.
- 4—An early announcement by President Huerta that he would not be a candidate for the presidency, together with pledge of a free and open election.

President Huerta has not been asked to resign. This was authoritatively stated. President Wilson merely—

JEROME APPEARS THAW IS WORRIED

Fugitive Is Excited and Scared by Presence of Man Who Forced Sentence to Matteawan

LAWYERS LOSE AIR OF CONFIDENCE

Go Carefully Over Plans Looking for Loophole Which Jerome Aspects He Will Find

BY JOHN EDWIN NEVIN
(Staff Correspondent of the United Press.)

SHERBROOKE, Que., Aug. 26.—That William Travers Jerome is the Nemesis of Harry K. Thaw was demonstrated today more clearly than any time since the murder of Stanford White. Yesterday the high priced camp of allies for the Pittsburgh millionaire was a unit in its defense plans. In the jail Thaw was confident and sarcastic. Today the defense is divided. Thaw, extremely nervous and much excited, paces back and forth in his cell, issuing orders to everyone who will listen. What the outcome will be no one can forecast. And all because Jerome, made the following statement:

Disturbing Statement

"Harry K. Thaw is headed straight back to Matteawan. He may fight here. He may elect to struggle in Vermont. But the end will be the same. And what difference does a few months make one way or the other?"

The moment Thaw heard this he sent for his lawyers and demanded they reverse themselves and keep him in Canada. In an outburst of rage he paced up and down his cell. Jerome is at last the paid attorney for the Broadway "chicken" fanciers," he shouted, "and with his true colors revealed we must fight every step of the way."

The lawyers consulted again. They spent most of last night going over the plans. They were still insistent that it was best to let Thaw go to Vermont. White and Shurtleff who were the original attorneys, changed their front. They urged a bold move which they said would afford delay. They wanted a writ of habeas corpus filed immediately. This would leave Thaw committed under the original commitment and they declared he would have to stay there until the regular October term of court. In the meantime something might turn up.

Minister May Interfere

But the other lawyers held that if any such action were taken the minister of justice at Ottawa would interfere. His power is absolute. And with the attention of the world on Canada it was not believed that a technical commitment would be permitted to be used as an excuse for the law's delays. However, they were considering this plan and also a proposition that an agreement be reached whereby Thaw be ordered deported to New York via Montreal and then a stay of execution granted permitting an appeal which would finally go to the privy council in London. The basis of the appeal

CLEVELANDER SAYS HE'S CHARLIE ROSS

Aged Woman in New Jersey Depended On to Identify New Claimant

TELLS STORY OF HIS APPEARANCE

Declares Boy Was Identified After Kidnapers Quarreled Over Money

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Persons interested in the case of the mysterious disappearance of Charlie Ross, the boy who was taken from his home in Germantown, Pa., on July 1, 1874, were today turning toward Mrs. Mary Morris, 73, living in Sayreville township, N. J., in the hope that she might be able to identify the latest man who claims he is the person for whom the police have searched for years. According to information reaching here and Sayreville, a Cleveland man is now preparing to establish his identity as Charlie Ross.

Tells of Birthmark

The claimant declared that Terrence Rogers, foreman of the Ridge-way Clay Mining company of Birch Creek, N. J., would be able to identify him, but Chief of Police Boyer of Sayreville believes he has found a better clue through Mrs. Morris. Rogers has denied knowing anything of Charlie Ross, but Mrs. Morris declared that if the Cleveland claimant has a birthmark the size of her thumb she can identify him as Charlie Ross. Mrs. Morris would not describe the mark further.

According to the story Mrs. Morris told Boyer a little boy was brought to Pegtown, as the locality in which she lives is known, one night in 1874. He was with a German named Maggy and Captain Campion. Mrs. Morris said they frequently quarreled and Maggy said so much about failing to get his share of pay for a "job" that the remark was one day dropped that he talked as much about the boy as though he might be Charlie Ross. Maggy then declared the boy was Charlie Ross, Mrs. Morris said. Maggy explained that Campion had a grudge against the boy's mother and had stolen him.

About 1888 the boy went away. Maggy and Campion sailed together and Campion was drowned. Maggy returned to Pegtown and died of pneumonia last year in New Brunswick.

Stolen at Four

Charlie Ross was four years old when he disappeared and would now be 43. Three men have previously appeared claiming they were the missing boy.

Charlie was the son of Christian K. Ross. He was taken out in a buggy by strange men and the men disappeared with Charlie. Letters were later received demanding $20,000 ransom for the boy. Ross was willing to pay the amount but died in 1897 after following every possible clue without finding the child. He is said to have spent more than $50,000 in the search.

LENROOT SENATE CANDIDATE SAYS MILWAUKEE YARN

Madison Politicians Scout Idea Put Forth that Congressman Says So in Letter

PRIVATE LETTER IS THE SOURCE

Milwaukee Sentinel's Story Based on Communication from the Superior Man to "Friend"

LOTS OF LETTERS

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 26.—Late editions of the local papers all say that Lenroot wrote personal letters not to one person, but to several friends here, declaring he would run for the senate.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 26.—

Entering the lists against Gov. McGovern and Lieut. Gov. Morris, Congressman I. L. Lenroot of Wisconsin in a letter received here today announced his candidacy for election as a United States senator next year. Lenroot's candidacy is the result of his break with Senator La Follette last fall when Lenroot refused to abandon the bull moosers when called on to do so by La Follette.

Denies Statement

SUPERIOR, Wis., Aug. 26.—Regarding a report current here for some days that he was about to announce his candidacy for the republican nomination for United States senator, Congressman Lenroot today said that he had not made any such announcement and that he had nothing further to say on the subject. He would make no statement as to his plans.

Scouted in Madison

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 26.—A rumor that Congressman I. L. Lenroot has made announcement that he will be a candidate for United States senator, was scouted by capital officials today. They claim to have had talks with him and that he never intimated his possible candidacy. They also pointed out that Lenroot would make no such move without the advice of friends, and some of his closest advisors say that he has never mentioned the subject.

A "Sentinel" Story

No doubt the Milwaukee dispatch at the head of this column is based upon no further information than that contained in the late edition of today's Milwaukee Sentinel, which in part is as follows:

"Congressman I. L. Lenroot will be a candidate for United States senator next year. This announcement was made in a letter received here by a friend of the congressman. This will be an interesting reading to Gov. McGovern and Lieut. Gov. Thomas Morris, who expected to have the field all to themselves. Incidentally it emphasized the break between Senator La Follette and Mr. Lenroot, which came when Mr. Lenroot refused to drop the bull moose side when called upon to do so by the senator last year.

"With three candidates in the field the congressman may figure that his chances of securing the nomination would be good and it might be that he was not far off in his calculations. It certainly would make a pretty fight and one rivaling in bitterness the contest of 1908. With McGovern, Lenroot and Morris in the field it is possible that Senator Stephenson may feel like making another run. If not there is a possibility that some other conservative may get into the game.

"The congressman's entrance into the senatorial fight is a striking illustration of the gap which lies between him and his former patron and friend.

"It is already hinted that unless Governor McGovern sees the light that Lenroot may be taken up as the bull moose candidate for United States senator. Stranger things have happened in the political history of the state."

SESSION THREE MINUTES

Committees Representing Employees Meet Railway Men in Chicago

Pending Since March

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 26.—With the situation between the eastern railroad and their 100,000 employees, involving a demand for a wage increase and betterment of working conditions, still unsettled, it became known on Monday that the 55,000 men on the railroads extending west from Chicago are centering their attention on that city, awaiting the result of a conference now on between high officials of the western roads and representatives of their employees, the demands under consideration being practically the same as those made by the eastern men. The Chicago and Northwestern, the Milwaukee and the Soo roads are Wisconsin lines involved.

Trustees Meet Here

Assurance that the college will locate here was seen by Mr. Utermoehl this morning in a letter he received from the president of the school, announcing that the board of trustees will hold a meeting here September 4. Mr. Utermoehl was previously informed that if the proposition made by this city was favorably considered, the board of trustees would meet here.

The proposition made to the school by the board of trade included the offer of a twenty acre site in the south end of the city. The offer of the ground was made possible through the generosity of Henry A. Salzer and Walter and Herman Tillman. A meeting of the board of trade committee on education and university extension was held last week, at which Mr. Salzer and the Tillmans put forward their offer. The proffer of the site was at once communicated to the college, and today's favorable answer is the result. A cash consideration was also included in the board of trade terms offered to the school.

The site offered is located near the Burlington tracks and Losey boulevard on the south side. If the school definitely decides to come to La Crosse, it is expected that the council will extend a street to the location.

Trains Ministers

The school is a denominational institution, which concentrates on the preparation of ministers of a certain church. Academic and musical courses are offered in addition to the theological curriculum. The board of trade refuses to divulge the name of the college until negotiations have reached a more definite stage. Several other cities are making efforts to have the school locate with them, and the news that La Crosse was ahead in the race, it is feared, might cause them to redouble their efforts and perhaps win the trustees away from favorable consideration of the La Crosse offer.

Conference in Secret

The conference now in session is secret. It is understood that the engineers and firemen want an increase in wages. Conductors and trainmen ask for betterment of working conditions. Some changes in these will necessitate an increase in pay. Committees from the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Railway Firemen, Brotherhood of Railway Conductors and Trainmen are taking the matter up. The railroads are dealing separately with each organization.

Had No Defense

Another plea that will be made to the governor according to Mr. Wolfe today, is that the "Defender of Cameron Dam" never succeeded in getting a word of defensive evidence into the record.

"At the time of the trial," declared Mr. Wolfe today, "Dietz was nothing less than a monomaniac on the subject of his defense. His dealings with lawyers had shaken what little faith he had in the profession, and as everyone knows he demanded that he be allowed to conduct his own case.

"Dietz never took the stand in his own defense on the theory that when it came to arguing to the jury he would be permitted to tell his own story. That stand was suicide for him. When the taking of testimony was finished Dietz got before the jury and started to tell his story. He was immediately snapped off by the judge who ordered him to confine himself only to such evidence as had been introduced. The result was that Dietz had only the evidence of the men who were trying to jail him to argue on.

Up to Supreme Court

"The case then went to the supreme court and that body refused to reverse the verdict of the lower court on the ground that Dietz had had opportunity to be represented by attorneys and that his failure to get in his evidence was his own fault. We contend that his serving a life sentence for his ignorance of the law—as far as it concerned court procedure—is not in line with the fundamental principles of justice."

Mr. Wolfe says that Dietz has been a model prisoner and that the prison officials have had not the slightest trouble with him. In the event the governor declines to grant a pardon or parole a plan will be made, says Mr. Wolfe, for a commutation of sentence to one of the lower degrees of manslaughter. This would mean that the sentence would be reduced to probably five years.

BATTLE STARTED TO FREE DEFENDER OF CAMERON DAM

Governor McGovern to Be Asked to Pardon Imprisoned Outlaw Says Lawyer Here Today

NEW EVIDENCE IS DISCOVERED

Winchester Arms Expert Ready to Testify that Dietz Could Not Have Killed Harp

CASE WAS MOST SENSATIONAL

Famous War of Woodsman Attracted Nation-wide Attention; Prison for Life

New evidence, which it is claimed proves beyond a doubt that John Dietz of Cameron Dam fame could not have fired the shot that killed Deputy Sheriff Harp, is the basis of a petition for a pardon filed with Governor McGovern by Attorneys Cochems, Kannberg & Wolfe, Milwaukee attorneys. Mr. Hubert O. Wolfe, who is a brother to Attorneys W. F. and A. C. Wolfe of La Crosse, is here and outlined the case.

Friends of the woodsman, now serving a life sentence in the state penitentiary at Waupun for refusing to submit to what he believed robbery by the lumber barons of the northern woods, have raised a fund with which his campaign for a pardon will be sought and Governor McGovern will hear the arguments the first part of September.

According to Mr. Wolfe he has been working on the case for many months and has secured from the Winchester Arms people affidavits to the effect that a bullet from the gun from which Dietz was alleged to have fired the fatal shot, would penetrate sixteen to eighteen inches of solid oak without doubling. Evidence introduced at the trial of Dietz showed the bullet which killed Harp to have entered his mouth, lodged in the back of the skull and doubled up. On this point alone the attorneys believe they have grounds for a pardon or for at least a commutation of the sentence to one of the lower degrees of manslaughter.

VARSITY BANS TANGO

ALL WIGGLE-JIGGERS AT MADISON WILL BE EXPELLED ACCORDING TO PLANS OF THE FACULTY

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 26.—(Special.)—A ban on the tango, bunny hug and wiggle dances will be put on all university parties, according to information that is given out by some of the members of the faculty. At the close of the college year last semester these dances were forbidden at university parties, but it is now proposed to extend the ban to all dances given by students attending school here. It is said that the rule will be announced by the faculty and approved by the board of university regents and that all persons violating it will be expelled, the same as for drunkenness. It is claimed that the attitude of the legislature in demanding the fullest information regarding university affairs, coupled with the pointed questions of Senator Teasdale to obtain the fullest information about the morality of students, has determined the faculty to make the proposed rule.

THINKS HUSBAND VENDETTA VICTIM

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 26.—The story of a whole year of terror; twelve months during which her husband lived in constant dread of death at the hands of the Black Hand, was told to the police yesterday by Esther Sorce, wife of the man murdered by Black Handers Sunday night. The police believe revenge to have been the motive. According to Mrs. Sorce, her husband had feared death for a year. She told the police that members of the Black Hand wrongly suspected Sorce of being implicated in the murder of John Leone a year ago, and that he had known he was marked for death ever since the Leone shooting. In hope of avoiding his enemies, she said he had not stirred from his home after dark for a year. No trace has yet been found of the murderers.

THE TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

Planned by the Cook

By CARL JENKINS
Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Sarah Baxter was thirty years old. She was homely—awful homely. Sarah was the cook at Lookout Castle, as Colonel Ryder called his country home on the Sound.

Sarah had an honest look, even if it was a homely one, and appeared to be very frank, but, alas for those who haven't learned that every homely cook has a trick up her sleeve to be played sooner or later! What Sherlock Holmes himself might not have suspected of that woman wrestling her pots and pans was that she was both jealous and romantic.

Sarah had read many a novel. They were not about Buffalo Bill or the James Brothers. They were novels of love and adventure. They had heroes and heroines. They had varlets and villains. They had knights and chevaliers and maidens in distress. They had their Duvals and Reginalds. Sarah believed every line she read, even to a princess eloping with a swineherd and living in a cave thereafter as contented as an old hen. She had to spell out many a word, but she absorbed all. If the pudding burned or the roast beef went to a cinder while she was finishing a chapter, it didn't take away a bit of the romance.

Sarah was jealous, and of Miss Evelyn Ryder, twenty years old and something of a belle, though she had given no encouragement yet to the half dozen young men who came fluttering about. Why jealous? Oh, there were a dozen reasons, and Sarah thought each one a good one.

The man of all work at the Castle rolled into the waters of the Sound one day, and having reached bottom he remained there indefinitely. The colonel said it might be a week's job replacing him but Sarah Baxter had one knocking at the back door the very next day. His name was Simon Schermerhorn. He was twenty-five years old and as homely as Sarah herself, and had red chin whiskers besides. He could read a sign of "Keep off the Grass," and he could write his name. But he was never heard to boast of his education. Sarah got him on the telephone, and while he was waiting to see the colonel she said to him:

"Simon, I shall never marry a man unless he is a hero, and so there's no danger of my falling in love with you, but I'm willing to make a great man of you."

"I don't believe I want to be great," was his dubious reply.

"Then you may go. We want no stupid around here."

"But I'll try to be great if I can."

"That's more like it. Now listen. When you are called in to see the colonel, say 'sir' to him every time."

You will see his wife. Say 'ma'am' to her. You will see his daughter. Say 'miss' to her. She ain't home this morning, and she may see you first out doors. If she speaks to you, clap one heel behind the other, thus, and bring up the right hand and remove your chapeau and make a grand bow. Let the plume in your chapeau sweep the grass."

"What in thunder is a chapeau, and where in thunder is mine?"

"Oh, I forgot. Well, take off your cap and make a low bow. You needn't say much, but let her see the light of admiration in your eyes."

"The same as if I was looking at a fine bulldog?"

"Simon, if you play the fool, I'll never forgive you! Can't you understand that I'm going to make a great and rich man of you? Hist! The colonel wants you. Remember that 'sir'."

Simon could run an auto, but grass, fuss with a garden and make himself generally useful. He was hired on the spot, and the colonel later remarked to his wife:

"He doesn't seem to know enough to pound sand, but maybe we can get along with him for a while."

That afternoon when Miss Evelyn came home she ran across Simon on the lawn.

"You must be the new man?" she asked.

"Yes, sir—yer, ma'am—yes, miss," he replied in his confusion, and then remembering Sarah's caution he removed his headgear and made a grand sweep and a bow. He fell over backward in doing it, and heard the girl snicker as she passed on.

When her work had been done for the evening the cook called Simon in and read him a chapter from a romance, and then closed the book and said: "Now, listen to me, Miss Evelyn is a romantic girl—very romantic."

"Yes."

"She's like me in one thing—she'll marry a hero or none."

"But, ding it all, I'm no hero."

"But I'm going to make you one, if you've got the brains to follow my advice."

"I don't want to do anything to bring out the measles or mumps at my age!" protested Simon.

"It's no use talking to a half fool!" exclaimed Sarah, as she threw up her hands. "You can be the husband of Miss Evelyn as well as not, and here you are kicking about it!"

"Her husband?"

"I tell you it's so. She's romantic. I'll bet you anything she's thinking right now that you are some chivalier here in disguise."

"Is that the way girls are?"

"It is, Simon. They run to romance. If a tin peddler comes along they are ready to believe he is a duke with his old duds on. Inside of a week Miss Evelyn will be sure in her mind that you are here to woo and win her."

"By gosh, but I can't believe it!" said Simon.

"No, because you are not romantic."

but you take my word for it and do just as I tell you. I shall tell Miss Evelyn on the q. t. that you are the son of a duke."

There were some funny things at the Castle during the next fortnight. The cook kept at Simon till she almost made him believe in her oft repeated assertions, and he was quite taken out of himself in following her instructions as to attitudes. Miss Evelyn was much outdoors and ran across Simon a dozen times a day.

Sometimes he addressed her as "Your Grace." Sometimes he cast down his eyes and sighed like a horse after being clubbed with a fence rail. Sometimes he looked at the end of her nose and seemed about to speak—to tell her that he had come in disguise to bear her away to one of his twenty-seven castles.

He was something new and novel in the man line, and that spirit of mischief inherent in ninety-nine girls out of a hundred induced Miss Evelyn to lead him on a bit. In fact, she went so far as to say one day:

"My Lord, will you please root out that big burdock near the front gate."

Simon fell over his feet, and lost no time telling Sarah the news.

"I knew it would come," was the cook's reply. "She has penetrated your disguise and you are ready for the next step."

The family auto had been in the shop for repairs. Simon was sent to fetch it home, and the next day he took Miss Evelyn for a ride. Before leaving the grounds the cook had a few words with him and then a few more, and the few more were:

"If she holds off, tell her that you are desperate enough to commit murder and then blow out your own brains!"

When the auto had gone a mile Simon turned to Miss Evelyn.

"Dearest, will you fly with me?"

"Man, are you crazy?" demanded the girl.

"I love you to distraction and you must be mine."

"Turn about and go back, sir!"

"Woman, I am a desperate man! If you don't pledge me—"

He had stopped the auto, and it had been overtaken by one in which a young man was driving alone.

"Any trouble here?" he asked as he raised his cap.

"I want you to haul this fellow out and give him a thrashing!"

"Certainly, miss."

Simon put up the bist fight he could, but it was not good enough. He sat by the roadside holding his bleeding nose as the young man stepped into the Castle car to drive the girl home. The betrayed man didn't follow even to get his things and the money due him. It was three months later that Sarah Baxter wrote him:

"The whole trouble was with your red chin whiskers. Miss Evelyn knew that no hero ever wore such. It may interest you to learn that the young man who smashed your nose is coming some day next week to ask the colonel if he can have his daughter for a bride. Farewell, lass born!"

When a man says he was driven to drink he always insinuates that some woman handled the ribbons.

The average man's aim in life depends largely on the size of the target.

A pedigree is all right in its way but it's money that makes the mare go.

Tan, Red or Freckled Skin Is Easily Shed

To free your summer-solled skin of its oiliness, muddiness, freckles, blotches or tan, the best thing to do is to free yourself of the skin itself. This is easily accomplished by the use of ordinary mercurized war, which can be had at any drug store. Use at night as you use cold cream, washing it off in the morning. Immediately the offending surface skin begins to come off in fine powder-like particles. Gradually the entire cuticle is absorbed, without pain or inconvenience. The second layer of skin now in evidence presents a spotless whiteness and sparkling beauty obtainable in no other way. I've ever heard of.

If the heat tends to loosen and wrinkle your skin, there's an effective and harmless remedy you can readily make at home. Just let an ounce of powdered salicylate dissolve in a half-pint witch hazel and bathe your face in the liquid. This at once tightens the skin and smooths out the lines, making you look years younger. Emily Coulson in Popular Monthly.—Advertisement.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

Polly Gets a Troublesome New Pet.

The Kid Snuggled Close to Polly.

Of course Jack and Evelyn smiled when daddy said that he would tell them a story. The story was to be about a baby goat, something that Jack and Evelyn had long wished to own.

"You know that a baby goat is called a kid," daddy said. "Polly had long wished for a pet of this kind, and one day when a kind friend stopped at the door and lifted one out of his automobile she knew that it was meant for her. She rushed up to the little thing and gathered it into her arms."

"You will have to keep him tied so he can't run away," the friend said. "Polly ran into the house and got a leather collar that had belonged to one of the dogs. It was too large for the kid's neck, but by punching a hole in the leather it was made to fit. They tied a heavy string to the collar and fastened the other end to the porch. Then the kid could not run away."

"They gave the kid milk to drink. Polly laughed to see him take the milk. Though he was well fed and had a pleasant lawn to run over, the kid was unhappy. He cried all day, and at night when he was put into the barn his shrill ma-a-ing could be heard all over the neighborhood."

"For several days the kid wailed and could not be comforted. Even the neighbors were beginning to complain about it, when one day the friend who had given it to Polly came along in his automobile."

"How do you like the kid by this time?" he asked. "Polly wished to be polite, but she could hear the kid crying on the lawn, crying in spite of the nice milk she had given him and the beautiful blue ribbon tied on his little neck."

"I like the little kid very much," she answered, "but he seems to be very homesick. I'm afraid he is crying for his mother."

"Perhaps he wouldn't cry if you didn't tie him up," the friend suggested. "Polly smiled. That seemed a good idea. 'I guess he won't run away now.' So the kid was untied and soon learned to trot about after Polly."

"He was a nice pet so long as he was a kid, but he soon grew up to be a big goat with horns, and then, oh, my! the trouble he got into. Flower beds were trampled, and neighbors complained that he nibbled their choicest plants. Then Billy took to chasing folks whom he did not like."

"One day he butted the policeman as he came past, and Polly's papa said he was afraid the policeman would arrest him all if Billy fought with him."

"So he got the goat another home, and, though Polly missed him, I am sure nobody else in the neighborhood did. Kids are nice pets, but it is inconvenient that they should grow up and be goats."

CONDITIONS RULE WOMEN'S ATTITUDE

"A great deal is said these days about sex antagonism," says Pictorial Review. "To those of us who study women at work, at play and in organization, there seems less antagonism between the two sexes than among members of the one sex—among women themselves.

"Have you ever listened while a man's best friend explained why said man was late to dinner or in returning from lodge? When it is all over and the friend prides himself that he has done a pretty good job, the wife remarks with calm incredulity, 'Of course you'd say that. Men always stick to each other.'

"And women do not, more's the pity!

"Reverse the case. Listen while a woman explains to her best friend's husband why said friend is late, for an appointment or has committed some slight indiscretion. Behold, inserted some tiny but damaging insultation, and over all the virtuous suggestion that no well regulated wife would do such things. Is the husband convinced by the explanation? He is indeed—convinced that he is a much injured person. What was a trifling sense of annoyance had grown into a belief that his wife needs a lecture on her shortcomings!

"Woman never gives her sister the benefit of the doubt."

A more conservative statement would be that women are less likely than men to give their own sex the benefit of the doubt. It must be admitted that, in some degree, women are less just to women than are men to men. But why?

Is it not because men set for women higher standards than they set for themselves? Barring instances in which personal infatuation controls judgment, are men more inclined than women to let the fallen sister arise? Do they regard her with the easy tolerance with which they view the fallen man?

Every woman knows she is held by both men and women to the man-made rigid standard to which men will not subject themselves. She gets what she gives. Virtue is vital to her place in society, and as she is compelled to adopt an intolerant attitude as to the major virtue, is it not natural that the habit of intolerance should extend itself to the smaller exactions of society?

So long as we maintain different planes of standards for men and women there can be no fair comparison of men's treatment of men with women's treatment of women.

NEW PUBLIC SERVICE LAW

Pennsylvania has named a public service commission of seven members and has adopted an entirely new law, abolishing the old state railroad commission. There are many commendable features about the new law, which gives the commission of seven much more power than the old railroad commission ever possessed. The latter could recommend only, while the new commission has powers to compel compliance with its orders.

The law gives the commission authority over 25 lines of industry in public service, including railroad, electric railroad, gas, electric light, stage line, express, pipe line, baggage transfer, ferry, turnpike, bridge, wharf, telegraph, telephone, heat, water, refrigerator, sewage and municipal corporations. The law contains most of the far-reaching and draconic features of the public utilities laws of other states, recently adopted, including provisions regulating the issue of stocks and bonds by public service companies. The commission has exclusive jurisdiction over the construction, relocation and abolition of grade crossings, the expenses to be borne by the public service companies, the municipalities benefited and the state, in proportions the commission deems equitable.

Every public service company must furnish and maintain service in all respects "just, reasonable, adequate and practically sufficient of the accommodation and safety of its patrons, its employees and the public, and in conformity with such reasonable regulations or orders as may be made by the commission."

Changes in tariffs can be made only after 30 days' notice to the commission and the public. The commission is empowered to determine whether the contemplated changes are reasonable and may allow or deny the company the right to make them. Every public utility is entitled to the full enjoyment and exercise of all its rights, powers and privileges lawfully possessed when the act was signed.

A corporation, except it be a street railway, may extend its service through a municipality without the consent of the municipality to reach some more distant point, but the commission has the power to order connections one with another.

The signing and attestation of unauthorized stocks and bonds by the officers of a public service company, or the assenting to such issue by the directors, is punishable by fine and imprisonment.

The progressive party has overlooked a plank in its platform that compels a man to own a home clear of incumbrance and a paid up grocery bill before the state grants him an automobile license.

Some men observe Sunday by shaving and washing their wrists. In every instance it is a good thing that Sunday comes once a week.

In the month of June, the Americans used 8,000,000 pounds of sugar. Part of this was probably used on those sugar coated pills.

Before going to bed one should consider whether mince pie or cumbers will be the more restful.

The height of patriotism is resisting the temptation to loaf on a government job.

Wasting Time
Enraptured, they gazed, hand-in-hand, upon the beautiful scene stretched before them in the setting sun. 'Twas the lake district, and they but three days upon their honey-moon.

"Dearest," he said, gazing at her fondly, "isn't this heavenly?"

"Yes, Reginald," she softly murmured.

"Do you know," he whispered ardently, "to me life does not seem long enough for our happiness. Just think, even if we are fortunate, our married life can hardly last longer than fifty years."

"Is that all?" she queried won-deringly, edging nearer.

"Yes, that's so," a touch of sadness in his voice. "Only fifty years in which to love each other."

"Then kiss me quick, Reginald," she exclaimed, "we're wasting time!"

Economical Use of Bread

A New England mother had come upon her 8 year old son enjoying a feast whereof the components were jam, butter and bread.

"Son," said the mother, "don't you think it a bit extravagant to eat butter with that fine jam?"

"No, ma'am," was the response.
"It's economical! the piece of bread does for both."—Lippincott's.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

Grandmother's Garden
Grandmother's garden was edged with box,
And quaint were the flowers that grew;

Foxglove and fennel and lady locks,
Marjoram, mint and rue;
Fragrant it was with mullen pink,
And lilies of white and gold;
Never was sweeter a spot, I think,
Grandmother's garden old.

Grandmother's garden, she loved it so!
Rainy the day or fair,
Down its borders she'd always go,
Watching the bloom with care;
Weeding and pruning with skillful hand.

But gentle; just so, they say,
She reared her children, a goodly band,
Who Grandmother bless today.

Grandmother's garden! If souls return
I am sure that she comes once more,
When deepens the green in the ivy urn

And crocuses deck the door;
For fields Elysian on earthly bowers
May border, could dull eyes see,
A gracious presence amid her flowers

Grandmother still may be.

Extreme of Economy
"The late James Molloy," said a music publisher, "wrote humorous songs now and then, but it is as the author of 'Love's Old Sweet Song' that he will be remembered.

"Yet his humor was good, too—bright, clean and pure. He liked to make fun of people who lived in the country. I once heard him say in London to a Devon man:

"'Why do you live in the country, anyhow?'
"So as to save money," was the reply.

"Are the vegetables and milk and meat cheaper?"
"They are, on the contrary, slightly dearer."

"How do you save, then?"
"No 'Salome' opera, $50 a year.
No restaurant dinners, $100 a year.
No theater, $100 a year. No taxicab fares, $50 a year. No distractions of any kind, $75 a year."

"Look here," said Mr. Molloy,
'could not you save money if you died?'

Fragrant Tableaux
There is an old lady living in a small town in southern Pennsylvania who makes great efforts to keep abreast of the times. Her opportunities, however, are circumscribed, and she is sometimes compelled to resort to her imagination. She went to a church social lately, and as she entered the room one of the attendants said:

"Good evening, aunt. I am glad you came. We are going to have tableaux this evening."

"Yes, I know," replied the old lady; "I smelt 'em when I first came in."

Cultivated Familiarity
Mr. Knox, secretary of state in Taft's cabinet, was formerly engaged in the practice of law in Pittsburgh.

One day, says a friend, Mr. Knox was put out to find on his arrival at his office that everything was topsy-turvy and that the temperature was much too low for comfort. Summoning his office boy, a lad only recently entered in his employ, the lawyer asked who had raised every window in the place on such a cold morning.

"Mr. Muldoon, sir," was the answer.

"The janitor, sir."

"Who carried off my waste basket?" was the next question.

"Mr. Reilly, sir."

"And who is Mr. Reilly?"

"He's the man that cleans the rooms."

Mr. Knox looked sternly at the boy and said: "See here, Richard; we call men by their first names here.
We don't 'mister' them in this office.
Do you understand?"

Yes, sir," and the boy retired.

In a few minutes he reappeared and in a shrill, piping voice announced:

"There's a gentleman that wants to see you, Philander."

An old man in such a bold flirt it was understood he came from Janesville, Ill.

Sometimes a reputation for wonderful memory is based on a note book.

THE RED BUTTON

Copyright, The Dobbins-McCormick Company

The last eighteen hours had been one long secret hunt for Juan Perez alias Estrilla, and for Rosalie Le Grange. When, after the detectives finished with Miss Estrilla—Senorita Perez—he found Rosalie Le Grange mysteriously gone, he waited for a time at the house. Rosalie made no sign. Presently, Miss Harding and Miss Jones came home to dinner, and afterward Professor Noll, McGee detained them all. Seven o'clock passed; and the other three boarders failed, like the landlady, to appear. They were Mr. North, Mrs.
Hanska and Miss Lane—all involved in the Hanska case. When he noted this suspicious circumstance, he removed Miss Estrilla to a private room in the criminal ward at Bellevue. Booked as Margaret Perez, she attracted no great attention from the reporters; especially since a surgeon, instructed in advance, gave out a hint that she was merely a witness in a counterfeiting case. Then began an all-night search—for Estrilla first, for Rosalie next, and last of all for North and the two women. Late that night, Inspector McGee, clutching at every possibility, visited Lawrence Wade in his cell at the Tombs and questioned him. The announcement that Mrs.
Hanska had disappeared seemed to disturb him more than any device for breaking silence that the police had ever used; but still he maintained his attitude of defiant and somewhat insolent calm. Unshaken, he stood all the questioning; and McGee, aware now of his innocence, had not the heart to crowd him to the wall.

So the night had worn away; and so the morning. And Rosalie Le Grange made no sign. How long—how long! A vision entered the mind of Inspector McGee—a flash of imagination compounded from many old experiences. Some day the Coroner would report a woman's body floating in the bay or buried in a cellar. And that body—he must search the cellar under Estrilla's rooms. He turned to ring for a detective.

The doorman entered.
"Mrs. Le Grange to see you," he said.

For the first time in his life of brute force, Martin McGee felt his physical powers crumbling and waning within him. He sat down at his desk. Rosalie Le Grange had come.
That meant present success and ultimate triumph; for Rosalie Le Grange had never failed him yet.
Doubtless she had achieved another of her miracles—possibly Juan Perez alias Estrilla was just behind her.

"Show her in—and I'm engaged —don't disturb me for anything—until I tell you."

He expected her to appear with some of her old bounce and gaiety.
In the long half-minute before the door opened, he pictured that entrance—her face smiling, dimpled; her voice vibrating as though with suppressed laughter; her step a miracle of lightness and spring. So he started as she stood for a moment facing him. Dead of eye, dead of expression, dead of tint—she looked again all her age. She moved toward him at a pace which showed effort with every step.

"Well," he cried, "well! We've had a chase for you, Gee! I couldn't think what had happened!" His professional concerns rushed into his mind with the departure of his regeater anxiety. "Where is he? Did you get him?" he asked.

He had ignored the chair which she pushed toward her. And she simply shook her head.

"What!" exclaimed Martin Mc-Gee. The sharpness of his tone showed the depth of his old trust in Rosalie. "What! That comes of letting you try to get him alone. What a damned fool—did he get away from you?"

Rosalie, still looking into his eyes, shook her head again.

The change in Inspector McGee's face expressed his emotion as though he had spoken in volumes.
His skin flushed; his eyes grew hard; his jaw snapped.

"Again Rosalie shook her head.
"What do you mean—what do you mean?"

"I let him go—I helped him get away," said Rosalie Le Grange.

"Well, by God!" cried Inspector McGee—"by God, we'll get him and you. Fool me, will you—and I'd trusted you! If you think you can beat a general alarm—where's that doorman?"—with another thought his hand went toward the battery of electric bells which could summon armed men as from the ground. But Rosalie caught his wrist.

"Wait!" she said, "if you ring that bell, you shut me up for good.
Do you think any little police Third Degree can git anything out of me that I don't want to tell? Your one chance to get the truth is to hear it now. The minute anybody else comes into that door—I close my face. Take your hand away from there. Sit down!"

His good sense reassured itself;
he obeyed. But still his face was red and hard. Then—though Inspector McGee was some minutes noting the consciousness of Rosalie Le Grange.
Little by little, the life came back.
One by one, the lights of her began twinkling in mouth and chin and dimples. And she spoke:

"Martin McGee, you're free to look for that Perez man wherever you want. You won't get him. You would stand a chance if you had just him on the other side. But you've got me, too. An' you know me! Now, listen. Maybe this is the last talk we'll ever have together, an' I want to put it straight. You're out to send that boy to the electric chair, just like you'd send a piece of stove wood to be burned up in the fire. You ain't thinkin' about any-thin' else. I know how you and the District Attorney would put it to the jury. He was a committin' burglary. He was stabbin' his man—he's a flash with no pull—that talk about apoplexy is to laugh. But I ask you private—do you think he deserves it?"

"Well, that's the law, ain't it?" growled McGee. "That's what I'm here for."

Rosalie's heart gave a little jump. But she controlled her expression. He was willing to argue the case—the first skirmish was won.

"The law!" exclaimed Rosalie.
"That for your law! Golly, I could carry a 'Votes for Women' banner when I think about it! You men have been makin' the law all these years. An' you've run it on rules—nothin' but rules. Diagrams. Did he do it? All right, hang him. You can't look at things except on the outside. I wish you did have a few women to look at 'em inside an'
out. Once in a while one of your cussed juries uses its common sense an' lets a man go when the police evidence is against him. But they don't do it themselves. No, sir! It's their mothers in 'em—"

"That will do," snarled McGee;
"this suffragette dope has nothing to do with the case. Where's Perez?"

"Now this Perez," pursued Rosalie, treating the Inspector's anger as though it had not been, "was a darn fool—worst fool I ever saw—as those cute little men generally are. But what was he doin' when Hanska died? Gettin' his own from a crook, the property that belonged to him, in the only way he knew.
Suppose it's true he killed Captain Captain Hanska—did ever you see a man that deserved killin' more?
Besides, he didn't."

Department of National Education
by Dr. P. P. Claxton, United States commissioner of education.

head of the department of physical

Shot a Dressed Bird
An Irishman who wasn't much of a hunter went out to hunt one day and the first thing he saw to shoot at was a bird sitting saucily on the top of a fence. He blazed away and then walked over to pick up the victim.
What he happened to find there was a dead frog, which he raised at arm's length, looking at it with a puzzled air. Finally he remarked:
"Well, but ye was a deuce of a foine looking bird before Oi blew the fithers off o' ye!"

The chap who insists on getting what is coming to him never stops at that.

L. M. P.: You are unduly alarmed about the seeming coarseness of your complexion. The sun and wind are hard on delicate skins, and maybe you have used some injurious face powder. Here is a preparation which will serve the double purpose of cleansing your skin of the sallow muddy look and whitening it in the way the best powder cannot. It is natural in effect and will cling and look like a part of your skin. Dissolve 4 ounces of spumax in ½ pint hot water, adding 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. This gives you a beautiful velvet-like complexion, besides preventing skin defects.

Queenie: Yes, dotted veils are bad for the eyes, but I hardly think that is your whole trouble. You need a tonic to rest and strengthen the eyes which ache from over-strain. Here is a formula you can mix at home at slight cost. Dissolve an ounce of crystals in a pint of water and put 2 drops in each eye daily. It is soothing to

GOVERNORS MEET TO RIDE THEIR HOBBIES AND TALK STATE AFFAIRS

Gov. Lee Cruce (top left), Gov. E. F. Dunne (top right), Gov. O'Neal (bottom left), Gov. George P. Hunt.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., Aug. 26.—It was not much of a train which failed to bring a few governors into Colorado Springs today. A good many of the state executives who will participate in the conference here during the rest of the week were already in town but the real rush of arrivals did not begin until early today. The governors are busy men and not many of them could spend more time away from their various capitals than was absolutely necessary.

In addition to the governors there were a number of ex-governors on hand, as was also Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane, representing President Wilson at the gathering.

To Welcome Executives

Governor Ammons of Colorado and Mayor Ackeson of Colorado Springs were scheduled to make the addresses of welcome at today's opening session and Governor Speyer of Utah to respond. After that today's business will consist largely of routine—the appointment of committees and other preliminary work of the conference.

Outside the routine a good many governors have theories which they desire to discuss and the controversies some of these propositions promise to provoke are likely to be very lively. Governor Ammons of Colorado, for instance, opposes national conservation, believing instead in the state control of public lands.

Governors' Hobbies

Governor Hunt of Arizona would abolish legislatures and vest their power in the governors and their cabinets. Governor Mann of Virginia wants a national highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific and another one from Canada to Mexico. Also he wants prohibition in Virginia. Governor Colquhoun of Texas wants Mexican gore—at any rate he wants it unless the Mexicans are very circum-spect in their attitude towards Texas.

Some of the speeches scheduled today were:

"A state department of efficiency and economy" to be presented by Governor Cruce of Oklahoma and Lister of Washington; "Distrust of Legislatures, the cause, the Remedy," to be presented by Governor Hodges of Kansas; "The Growth of Administrative Commissions" to be presented by Governor Dunne of Illinois and Hanna of North Dakota; "State Assumption of Nomination and Election Expenses" to be presented by Governor Baldwin of Connecticut and Carey of Wyoming.

one of the most reliable and important shows in the northwest. Secretary Joseph H. Poehling is already receiving inquiries from breeders in Wisconsin and Minnesota asking for information regarding the show and for copies of the premium list. Owing to the steady growth of the La Crosse show the association has employed two judges, which will assure prompt making of awards.

A committee composed of H. A. Walter, Joseph H. Poehling and J. E. Kircheis was appointed to find a location for the show. Since the exhibition has grown to its present proportions it has become difficult to obtain a suitable building, that is one large enough to accommodate the large number of birds. This year it is proposed to rent a large hall and if this can be done a cooping system will be obtained in which to display the birds.

It is proposed to offer larger and better prizes than ever before. The association has about a dozen silver cups that will be competed for and

In addition to these large cash premiums and specials will be offered. William Hoeschler was elected a member of the board of directors to succeed C. J. Sleer.

JUNK CLERK IS HEIR TO FORTUNE

TACOMA, Wash., Aug. 26.—Joseph Ellis, who left his home in Illinois twenty-six years ago and is now clerk in a junk store, earning $15 a week, received word through the police that he had inherited property valued at $50,000, consisting of a farm near Peoria, Ill., and stocks and bonds. The estate is that of his brother, Charles, who died recently in Peoria. Ellis wrote to his relatives at his former home only once in twenty-six years. That was five years ago, when he believed himself dying. He will go to Peoria in September.

Attorney W. F. Wolfe, prominent local democrat, recently appointed to the board of normal regents by Governor McGovern, returned today from an auto tour through the northern part of the state and announced that in all probability he would accept the berth.

Mr. Wolfe accompanied Attorney J. E. Higbee on a tour to Reserve, Wis., where they visited Judge E. C. Higbee, who is on an outing trip there. #### Today's Beauty Recipes

By Mme. D'Mille

"A complexion rivaling the lilies in purity naturally follows the use of a plain mayatone skin lotion, made by dissolving an original package amayatone in one-half pint witch hazel. This simple lotion applied to the face, neck and arms in the morning lasts throughout the day and overcomes the 'shiny' greasy look caused by powder or creams. For tan, freckles and other complexion blemishes the mayatone lotion is unequalled and not only gives to the skin a velvety smoothness, but is actually invisible and is a fine protection for the complexion.

"Superfluous hairs can be removed quickly and without pain or expense by the application of a delicate paste, which is prepared by mixing enough of the powdered delicate tone and water into a paste sufficient to thicken cover the objectionable hairs. This is to be applied and in two minutes rubbed off and the skin washed to remove the remaining paste. Every trace of hair vanishes with this simple treatment and the skin is left smooth, firm and spotless. No harm results from its use."—Advertisement.

WHITE HOT METAL
SHOWERS WORKERS

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 26.— Five men were probably fatally burned and fifteen others seriously hurt when a "ladle" car at the Republic Sheet and Tube company plant overturned today. The car was carrying five tons of molten metal when it suddenly tipped, the white hot fluid pouring over the men. As the molten mass struck the floor it came in contact with a pool of water and exploded, showering workmen many feet away with the hot metal.

Watch Your Baby
These Summer Days

Little Stomachs Get Out of Order Easily in Hot Weather

During the hot months mothers should look very carefully to the condition of the bowels of babies and young children, and, for that matter, it is important in the lives of people at all ages. Care should be taken that the water is pure, the milk wholesome and the fruit ripe (though not over-ripe), and that not too much of anything is eaten.
When trouble results it is usually in the form of constipation or of diarrhoea. If the child loses appetite, is fretful or languid, and complains of headache, you may look for constipation. Give it a small dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at night on retiring, and by morning this pleasant laxative will have acted and the child will be its normal self again.

At the first sign of a summer cold also give Syrup Pepsin, as the cleaning out of the bowels will usually be sufficient to break the cold. Summer diarrhoea can be stopped in the same way by ridding the bowels of the poisons and germs that cause the trouble. This opinion of the value of Syrup Pepsin is shared by thousands of people like Mrs. Ella Denzel, 124 Nichols Ave., Stratford,

Conn., who uses it successfully herself and gives it to her two little boys; and Mrs. C. C. Allen of New Monterey, Cal., who finds it in every particular just what she and her family need.
Avoid giving children cathartics, purgatives, pills or powders, as they are too harsh. Confine yourself to a gentle laxative- tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You can obtain it of any druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, the latter being the family size.
Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it, postpaid, by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell,

GALESVILLE FAIR
UNDER WAY TODAY

Annual Trempealeau County Exhibit Gets Started Today; Wednesday
La Crosse Day

GALESVILLE, Wis., Aug. 26.— (Special.)—While the formal opening of the Trempealeau county fair did not take place until this morning, Galesville has been soaking in a fair atmosphere for the last three days.
The fair followers commenced to arrive last week and Sunday found a small army on the grounds.

Monday the fair seemed to be on in earnest. Carloads of exhibits from distant points commenced to arrive until Secretary Davis was up in the air as what to do with the stuff.
By Monday night every foot of available space along the pike was occupied by tents and stands. Every barn and shed was filled with exhibits, and the overflow was sheltered in tents. Never before has the Galesville fair had such a layout.

Wednesday the fair will be on in full swing. It is La Crosse day and Galesville will know it when the hundreds from that city will pour into the grounds. Galesville sends a thousand visitors to the Interstate fair every year. La Crosse won't do quite so well, maybe, but more than 500 from this city will see the Galesville show.

And Galesville has some fair. Everything is there to make up a fair of the right sort, and there is a right good town back of the show.
The morning program Wednesday includes a ball game for the championship of Trempealeau and Jackson counties. The afternoon program shows two fast harness events.

Between heats two foxhound drag races will be put on. Forty hounds will take the scent in a mile run and finish in front of the grand stand.
Broncho John's cowboys and wild west performance will also be given.
The automobile parade and the award of two silver cups will be an interesting feature.

Band concerts down town at night and two theaters running will entertain the crowds. The annual fair dance in the opera house also will be a popular number.
Thursday's program will be every bit as good as Wednesday's. All the special features will be put on, and in addition there will be a meeting of Holstein breeders and an address

Delay in Report Demands Explanation
at Madison

Tired of what they believe to be the negligence of the board of public works in failing to file the semi-annual report of progress of work in the La Crosse water plant, the railroad commission of Wisconsin this morning notified Mayor Sorenson and members of the board that they would demand an explanation at a hearing in Madison September 13.

The order of the commission, to appear and "explain," was signed by all members of the rate commission.
Immediately upon receipt of the order here there were things "doing" in the city hall and as a result of several conferences between Mayor Sorenson and others it was announced that the board of public works would immediately take steps to gather the data the commission wants and the same will be filed with the commission soon.

Mayor Sorenson has written the commission assuring them that the information will soon be forthcoming and inquiring whether or not the hearing will be postponed in the

HOLD FUNERAL FOR RUNAWAY VICTIM

The funeral services for Mrs. Augusta Luedke, who died Sunday morning as the result of being knocked down by a team of horses in front of her home, 1202 South Third street, August 5, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence, and at 2:30 from the German Lutheran church. Rev. Julius T. Gamm officiated. Burial was made in Oak Grove cemetery.

STATE AID FOR COUNTY HIGHWAYS

Under a ruling by Attorney General Walter C. Owen, received by County Clerk Bert Jolivette today, the city of Onalaska and village of West Salem and Bangor will be entitled to state road aid on the streets that were adopted as county highways at the last meeting of the county board.

BRIBERY IS CHARGED

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 26.—That he would at once start an inquiry that might include every department of the county administration in order to sift to the bottom the charges against John Falbe, steward of the Milwaukee county insane asylum, was the statement at noon today of District Attorney Edward Yockey who late Monday swore out a warrant charging Falbe with accepting a bribe. At this preliminary hearing today Falbe was released under $1,000 bonds.

WANT CITY REPRESENTED

C. A. Harper of the state board of health has requested Mayor Sorensen that La Crosse send representatives to the convention of the American Public Health association to be held in Colorado Springs September 9-13. It is probable that the council will vote to send Dr. J. M. Furman, health commissioner.

KNEELET "EXPRESSIVE"

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—The kneelet reached Chicago today and 3.0 retail jewelers, here for the national convention, burst forth in exclamations of rapture when Miss Jane Ott modestly drew aside the folds of a very much slit skirt to reveal $7,500 worth of precious stones that encircled her knee. "Isn't it beautiful?" queried Miss Ott. "Uh, uh," responded the jewelers still admiring in chorus. "It calls attention to the natural grace and beauty of the wearer," said Miss Ott, who teaches Chicago's "400" how to tango. "It's so expressive—and you can't help noticing it."

VICE PROBERS TO VISIT HERE SOON

Chairman Teasdale of Senate Committee Says the Hearing Will Be Conducted in La Crosse

TO REVIEW THE ROADHOUSES

Experts Alleged to Have Been Busy Gathering
Data, on Conditions
Surrounding City

The vice commission created by the last legislature to investigate moral conditions in Wisconsin will hold sessions in La Crosse according to State Senator Howard Teasdale, Sparta, who was in the city today. Mr. Teasdale is chairman of the commission and is the main-spring back of the probe.

Just when the commission will come to La Crosse has not been decided but it will probably be early this fall.

"We plan to try and get the conditions in all parts of the state," said Mr. Teasdale. "We feel that the main work is educational in character, and to try and impress upon the parents the need of greater restrictions upon the young and the better informing them of the effects. We feel that greater good can be accomplished along these lines by getting into the centers of population."

After Road Houses
When the hearings are conducted here it is probable that representatives of various civic organizations will appear before the commission and make suggestions for improvement of moral conditions not only here but throughout the entire state. It is also rumored that certain local people have been actively engaged for the last months securing figures and facts of conditions in and about La Crosse which will be presented to the commission at their La Crosse hearing.

It is understood that the road houses and their bearing upon the downfall of young men and women will be rehearsed and juicy bits of information divulged that will surprise even those supposed to be in touch with the situation.

The famous Cameron Dam over which the big interest had to float logs to the mills. He demanded toll for logs shot over the dam. The lumber company refused to pay it and put in crews of men to force the drive. Dietz, with the fighting spirit of the woodman, guarded the dam night and day to prevent the moving of the timber.

The interests, through their corps of attorneys secured court orders and contrived various schemes to get their man away from the dam. Dietz with little faith in the courts and less in the intention of the lumbering company to obey their mandates, believed the logs would be moved the minute he gave up his vigil. Militia was sent to the scene at the request of the lumber companies and Dietz with his family of boys and girls stood off two companies.

HELD UP LOGS.

The fight dragged for two or three years—in the meantime the logs of the lumber company were rotting above the dam. Then the real warfare started and the battle in which Harp was killed followed several days of siege during which newspapermen were the only men Dietz would allow within the borders of his land.

The case caused such widespread interest that several plays were staged with the famous defense of Cameron Dam as the main plot. At the time of his arrest an immense relief fund was raised by people who had taken an interest in his single handed war against the lumber companies. Attorneys were hired and the more trouble started. Dietz's one strong point is his honesty and when a lawyer told his daughter to get on the witness stand and testify to a falsehood to save her father Dietz revolted, fired the attorney and declared he would conduct his own defense. The result was a life sentence in Waupun, the man failing to get in one line of defensive evidence.

FEARS EFFECT OF MESSAGE AND HE PLEADS FOR TIME

ly demands formal assurance from Huerta that he will retire from the head of the government as provisional president when his successor is chosen at elections properly safeguarded.

President Wilson today emphatically declares that this government will insist upon each feature of the quartet of proposals made through Lind. His consent to postpone delivery of his Mexican message today is in effect an ultimatum to Huerta. He gives the de facto president twenty-four hours to retract his rejection of the peace proposals.

From Huerta Direct

It became known at the White house that overtures for today's delay came from Huerta direct. They were submitted to Governor Lind last night by the Mexican minister of foreign affairs.

Today Lind, Huerta, Gamboa and the American charge, O'Shaughnessy, are reported to be in conference at Huerta's palace. That the conference will result in acceptance, perhaps in a slightly modified form, of this government's proposals is confidently believed and expected by administration officials here. But the principles as embodied in the original proposals must be accepted.

These events today were the dramatic culmination of the Mexican situation which relieved the tension here and in Mexico for this government's final steps, short of drastic measures which might call into activity the army and navy.

President Wilson planned to bare to congress every step and fact in the negotiations with Huerta. Special Envoy John Lind had packed his belongings and was ready to leave Mexico City for Vera Cruz enroute home.

Officials here did not attempt to explain press dispatches from Mexico City telling that Special Envoy Lind had left the capital enroute for Vera Cruz and planned to sail for New York. It was stated by persons in high authority that Lind occupied a unique position in the negotiations. He was given the broadest of discretionary powers and is not necessarily under instructions from Washington. He acts for himself. Officials here insisted that Lind would undoubtedly return to Mexico City, it being pointed out that official dispatches carried the information that Lind himself joined with Huerta in a plea for delay in reading of the president's message. No word was received here from Lind today, officials say.

Then came the request from Huerta, through Gamboa, for renewal of negotiations with Lind and postponement by Wilson of his address to congress. Huerta feared the effect of the president's message upon this nation and also foreign powers. Heretofore it was Huerta upon whom depended definite action.

The president's address, detailing every step of the peace plan, would have had the possible result of turning the sympathy of the world powers against the Mexican de facto government.

Preparations Made

President Wilson's address was in type. A resolution authorizing a joint session of congress today for the receipt of his message had been prepared. Last night the president had taken both democrat and republicans of the foreign relations committee of both houses into his confidence. They had unanimously approved his stand.

The president was determined to act. But until the eleventh hour, he hoped for what seemed then almost impossible. It was made plain that only an expressed willingness from Huerta to reconsider his rejection of the mediation plan would prevent reading of the message today.

Shortly before 11 o'clock today Secretary Tumulty made the following announcement:

"Last night about midnight, after the conference between the president and the foreign relations committee of the two houses, a dispatch came from Mexico in which Mr. Lind united with Senor Gamboa in requesting the president to postpone his address to the congress until Wednesday in order to afford the authorities at Mexico City an opportunity for further consideration of the proposals of the United States in view of certain supplementary suggestions by Mr. Lind.

"The president has, of course, consented and is expected to address the congress at 1 p. m. Wednesday."

Contains a Threat

The words stating that the president expects to deliver his address at one o'clock were pregnant with significance. Administration officials ## declared they constituted a warning and an ultimatum to Huerta for immediate action within 24 hours. There must be no further delay.

President Wilson, with beaming face, plainly evinced his satisfaction over today's developments. To callers he voiced the strong hope that he might never have to deliver his message to congress. He believes and confidently hopes that today's conference in Mexico City will spell peace, through acceptance of this government's plan and success for Lind's mission.

At no time since the situation in Mexico became tense has the president been more hopeful of an amicable solution than today.

Secretary Bryan, his face emboldened by the Bryan smile, gave little outward evidence of a sleepless night, spent at his desk awaiting Lind's dispatch. This dispatch was telephoned to the president at 1 a. m. today by Bryan.

Due to Foreign Pressure

That Huerta's precipitate action was due largely to pressure from foreign governments was authoritatively stated today. It was reported that the foreign powers strongly endorsed this government's program as eminently fair.

The chief point brought to bear against Huerta was that the mediation plan permits him to retire gracefully and without great loss of his dignity or prestige, so dear to the Latin-American.

He would not be barred from taking a portfolio in the new president's cabinet. He would merely bid by the Mexican constitution, which bars a provisional president from seeking a bona fide election.

With authentic announcement of the four principal features of the mediation proposals, came the authoritative information that Huerta has indicated a willingness to accept three proposals but objected to the condition that he should not become a candidate.

Huerta professes himself as willing and anxious to insure free elections, but suggests that the presidential elections be deferred until the regular date set in October. His position is favorable toward an armistice.

Lind Leaves Mexico City

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 26.—(Via Galveston.)—John Lind, President Wilson's special envoy, left Mexico City today in the direction of Vera Cruz. He had no definite instructions about returning to Washington, and as his orders are largely discretionary, it is thought here that he will return. In view of the fact that Provisional President Huerta asked President Wilson to delay for twenty-four hours the reading of his message, it is expected that Lind will have further conferences with Huerta and Foreign Minister Gamboa.

would be discrimination. The Canadian immigration law gives only Canadians the right of appeal from exclusion or deportation. The treaty between Great Britain and the United States grants citizens of one country equal rights in the other.

Fail in Appeal

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 26.—The New York state authorities today made what seemed their last desperate appeal that Thaw be handed over to them to be taken back to Matewan. Frank Kennedy, deputy attorney general, with his legal representative here, R. A. Pringle, called on Blake Robertson, failed to impress him. Then they made a personal appeal to Hon. Charles Doherty, minister of justice, and acting minister of the interior.

Judge Doherty said the law would be strictly interpreted, but he did not see any reason why Thaw should be handed direct to New York state authorities.

Chicago Grain Review
CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—The prospect of renewed high temperatures over the corn belt was a bullish factor that sent corn prices up 1/4 to 1/2c over yesterday's closing prices in today's trading. Shorts who tried to cover today found that the offerings had all been consumed when the market slumped yesterday and there was an early advance that was maintained throughout the forenoon session. Wheat bulls drew support from the conditions abroad today and the fact that the run of new wheat at Minneapolis was surprisingly light. Prices were up a fraction at the opening and advanced an additional 1/4c during the morning. Oats opened firm on the advance in corn but was a trifle easier toward noon, September selling 1/4c under last night's closing figure. Provisions were steady with prices about the same as at yesterday's close. A steady hog market was the factor. The entire grain list slumped in the afternoon. Corn lost 1-4 for each month; wheat lost 1-4 to 3-8c and oats broke sharply, going down 1-2c under liquidation. Provisions were a trifle easier just before the close.

Old Time Advice to Doctors.
There is an old manuscript in the National Library at Paris which has the following advice to physicians: "On approaching the patient you should assume a calm expression and avoid any gesture of greed or vanity. greet those who salute you with a humble voice and sit down when they do. Then, turning to the sick person, ask him how he is. To the patient you promise to cure, but immediately on leaving the room you say to the relatives that the disease is grave. The result will be that if you cure him your merit is greater, and you will receive the greater praise and fee. while if he dies they will say that you had no hope from the first."

CAMPBELL CAN'T FIGHT

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 26.—The police today refused to sanction the proposed bout between Willie Ritchie and Ray Campbell, billed for Labor day, because of Campbell's poor showing in a recent fight.

The Naps combed fourteen hits off McQuillan and had little trouble with the Yankees. Lajoie hit safely three times in as many trips to the plate.

Watching The Scoreboard

Old Doc Crandall is so brimming with gratitude for his rescue from the St. Louis Cardinals that he had to show it yesterday, even at the expense of his former Bunkie, Leon Ames, now a Red.

Just when it looked as though Ames had the Giants shut out, things began to happen. After Herzog had scored the tying run, Larry Doyle singled and Crandall appeared with his bunch of gratitude. It resulted in a hit that scored the winning run. Arthur Devlin did not know it, but the hit that tied up the Boston-Pirate score he wound up his major league career. The former Giant has been released to Rochester.

Rixey held the Cards to four hits and shut them out while the rest of the Phillies batted out a victory. Luderus was the only Dooinite failing to get a hit, but Cravath made up for that by getting two.

The White Sox refused to be puzzled by Hughes and Groom and had little trouble with Washington. A policeman broke into the game, but not into the box score, by rendering first aid to Umpire McGreevy in persuading McBride to retire to the clubhouse in the second inning.

The Athletics confined their scoring to one hit, but it was enough. Plank held the Browns to five hits and shut them out.

Ty Cobb got but one hit, but twice killed Boston's chances of winning. Ty stole home in the fifth inning, tying the score and unhooked a long throw that prevented Janvrin from scoring on Hooper's out.
